

Metropolitan Cases

Robert Ward v. Metropolitan, et al. (Riverside County Superior Court)

On December 18, 2023, temporary employee Robert Ward filed an employment lawsuit against Metropolitan and retired employee Clara Masannat in Riverside County Superior Court. The complaint was served on Metropolitan and Ms. Masannat on January 19. The complaint alleges 12 causes of action. Seven causes of action are under FEHA alleging: discrimination based on disability; harassment based on disability; failure to prevent, investigate, and remedy discrimination; failure to accommodate disability; failure to engage in the interactive process to accommodate disability; aiding abetting, inciting, compelling, or coercing acts forbidden by FEHA; retaliation for opposing practices forbidden by FEHA. In addition, there are causes of action alleging wrongful termination, intentional infliction of emotional distress, negligent infliction of emotional distress, breach of written contract, and breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Plaintiff alleges Metropolitan failed to accommodate his request to be exempt from mask-wearing requirements in November 2021 and that Metropolitan unlawfully terminated him during the interactive process. The Legal Department is representing Metropolitan and Ms. Masannat and will meet and confer with Plaintiff to address legal deficiencies in the complaint. Metropolitan anticipates responding to the complaint in February 2024.

Ryan Tiegs v. Metropolitan, et al. (Riverside County Superior Court)

On December 18, 2023, employee Ryan Tiegs filed an employment lawsuit against Metropolitan in Riverside County Superior Court. Plaintiff served the lawsuit on Metropolitan on January 11, 2024. The complaint alleges six causes of action under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA): race discrimination; race harassment; gender discrimination; gender harassment; retaliation; and failure to prevent harassment, discrimination, and retaliation. Plaintiff alleges he was harassed and discriminated against based on his race and gender, Metropolitan approved and ratified this, he was retaliated against because of his complaints, and Metropolitan failed to prevent these occurrences. Metropolitan's answer or other responsive pleading is due on February 13, 2024.

State Water Project Contract Extension Litigation (Sacramento Superior Court)

On January 5, 2024, the Third District Court of Appeal issued a detailed 50-page opinion affirming the validity of the State Water Project (SWP) Contract Extension Amendments (Amendments).

These Amendments were the product of extensive negotiations between the Department of Water Resources (DWR) and the State Water Contractors (SWCs), which culminated in June 2014 with an agreement in principle (AIP). That AIP, in turn, served as the framework for the actual language of the Amendments, as well as the "proposed project" for purposes of environmental review under California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

Among other things, the Amendments extend the SWP contracts to 2085 and make certain changes to their financial provisions aimed at maintaining and improving the SWP's fiscal integrity and management. DWR opted to prepare an EIR in support of the Amendments, which did not identify any potentially significant impacts. DWR certified the EIR in November 2018, approved the Amendments in December 2018, and immediately filed an action seeking to validate them. Shortly thereafter, two additional lawsuits were filed by various environmental groups challenging approval of the Amendments. Metropolitan filed an answer in support of validation and intervened in the other two lawsuits. These cases were consolidated in Sacramento Superior Court and, as previously reported, the trial court issued a decision in favor of DWR in May 2022.

Although a variety of claims were asserted, most centered around alleged violations of CEQA, the Delta Reform Act and the Public Trust Doctrine, with concerns being raised about impacts to the Delta resulting from ongoing and future operations of the SWP, in general, and the proposed Delta Conveyance Project (DCP), in particular.

With respect to the CEQA claims, the court of appeal agreed that the Amendments were largely financial in nature and that the extension of the SWP Contract would not, in and of itself, alter the way the SWP was operated or maintained. The court also agreed that it was reasonable for DWR to assume that the SWP would continue as an ongoing concern even if the Amendments were not approved. As such, the existing SWP operations constituted the appropriate baseline by which to assess potential impacts, which supported the conclusion that no such impacts would occur. Finally, the court rejected arguments that potential impacts of the proposed DCP should have been examined as part of the environmental review process for the Amendments. The court noted that the Amendments had an independent purpose and that the proposed DCP was speculative as to both its timing and scope.

With respect to the Delta Reform Act claims, the court of appeal agreed that approval of the Amendments did not constitute a “covered action” requiring certification of consistency with the Delta Plan. In reaching this conclusion, the court noted that the Amendments did not involve future developments affecting the Delta or actions physically taking place within the Delta, nor would they have any significant impact to California’s water supply or the Delta’s ecosystem. The court further noted that this Act does not apply to “routine maintenance and operation of the SWP.” On this point, the court stated that it was not necessary to decipher the “precise meaning” of this phrase. Rather, “[i]t suffices to note the Legislature’s clear intent to exempt the existing State Water Project from a covered action.”

Lastly, with respect to the Public Trust Doctrine claims, the court of appeal began by questioning whether the duty to protect the water resources at issue fell upon DWR, rather than the State Water Resources Control Board. The court concluded they did not, since DWR is not responsible for approving the water diversions that form the basis of the SWP’s supplies. The court then went on to note that while this duty might apply to other state agencies in certain circumstances, that was not the case here. The “determinative fact” is whether these Amendments would “have an impact on water ‘that is imbued with the public trust.’” Based on the record before it, the court agreed with DWR’s determination that they did not.

On January 16, 2024, a petition for rehearing was filed with the court of appeal. That petition was denied on January 25, with the court making just two minor modifications to its opinion. Accordingly, the appellants’ last option is to seek review of this opinion by the California Supreme Court.

Matters Concluded and/or Terminated

AFSCME Local 1902 v. Metropolitan (Public Employment Relations Board)

On March 6, 2020, AFSCME Local 1902 filed an unfair practice charge with the Public Employment Relations Board alleging Metropolitan engaged in an unfair labor practice in violation of the Myers-Milias-Brown Act and PERB regulations by making unilateral changes to Metropolitan’s deferred compensation plan documents without negotiation. Metropolitan contended that it attempted to meet and confer with the bargaining unit prior to implementing the modifications but the plan changes were legally mandated to be in place by end of calendar year 2019 to avoid potential IRS penalties and placing the plan itself in legal jeopardy. Consequently, Metropolitan made the challenged modifications to the deferred compensation plan documents without completing negotiations with the bargaining unit, with the understanding the negotiations would continue.

The parties engaged in multiple rounds of settlement talks. Talks then progressed at the bargaining table between Metropolitan management and Local 1902 during recent MOU negotiations which were fruitful and resulted in a settlement. Under the terms of the settlement, Local 1902 withdrew the charge and the parties agreed that any potential changes to the deferred compensation plan documents going forward will be discussed between the parties. The settlement contains no financial terms or admission of fault. The Legal Department represented Metropolitan in this matter.
