Subject

A pilot program for early retirement of alfalfa in the Palo Verde Valley

Executive Summary

This oral report will describe a concept for a potential new water conservation pilot project with farmers in the Palo Verde Valley. The project would involve farmers terminating their end-of-life alfalfa stands earlier in the year, resulting in seasonal water savings during the summer—a concept staff have named “alfalfa early retirement.” Metropolitan is currently working with the Palo Verde Irrigation District and identifying possible funding sources for a one-year pilot of this idea to take place next year.

Fiscal Impact

None currently, as the project is in its conceptual stage.
